An article published on March 11, 2021 in Law360 Pulse announced five promotions across our offices in Atlanta, Houston, Philadelphia and San Antonio, a reflection of growth in our labor and employment, tax controversy and civil litigation practices.

Kevin F. Sweeney and Kenneth I. Trujillo were promoted to equity shareholders, and Jillian Gordon Foerster, Jeffrey S. Luechtefeld and Julie R. Offerman were elevated to shareholder status.

"Adding two equity shareholders in our Philadelphia office is huge because that office is smaller than our other offices and this is a sign of growth that we're very excited about," said Chamberlain's Managing Shareholder Larry Campagna. "Both Ken Trujillo, who ran for mayor of Philadelphia a few years ago, and Kevin Sweeney are relatively young, aggressive and terrific new shareholders who will help build that office up."

Campagna went on to say that Foerster, Luechtefeld and Offerman are building and promoting their practices. "We feel very blessed that in a time of national crisis, we've been able to grow and add quality lawyers and promote new shareholders in the ranks of the firm," Campagna added.
