Jarrold Martin is a litigator with a focus on restructuring and bankruptcy. He has a nationwide practice and represents bankruptcy trustees, creditors, and corporate and high net-worth debtors. Jarrold provides personalized, efficient service for each client and effectively pursues each client's strategic goals.

Whether you're a creditor or a debtor, Jarrold is passionate about providing the ability to move beyond the circumstances of the bankruptcy and into new opportunities. He leads the firm's bankruptcy practice group, while also maintaining a robust litigation practice in both federal and state court. Jarrold is comfortable in the courtroom, whether it is a routine hearing, a multi-day trial, or anything in between.

While his practice involves all types of businesses, he has particular interest and experience in restructuring matters affecting energy companies. This includes representing creditors in some of the largest oil and gas bankruptcies filed in Texas.

Jarrold serves as a Subchapter V Trustee, a fiduciary appointed by the Department of Justice in Chapter 11 cases under the new small business bankruptcy law. This gives him particular insight when representing small businesses under the new law.
